Courses taught

MSW Foundation Field Seminar (designed course); Graduate Field Practicum I, II and III; BSW Integrative Seminar I and II; BSW Integrative Field Experience; Social Work Practice with Individuals, Families and Groups (re-designed course); Social Work and Social Issues; Social Welfare as a Social Institution; Social Welfare as a Social Institution Lab; Crisis Intervention (designed course); Nonviolent Crisis Intervention.

Teaching Innovations

100 Neediest Cases (Fall 2007 and ongoing)

Developed and implemented a collaborative community- based student learning project with Dr. Uma Segal and a representative from the United Way as part of a BSW practice course (Social Work Practice with Individuals, Families and Groups) and an MSW foundation course (Human Service Organizations). The students in the combined courses review over 7000 requests annually from “needy” families and determine the dollar amount each applicant receives from the program. Students complete a written assignment that challenges them to think critically about the process that they engaged in. As an end result, the students learn about the challenges of allocating funds when resources are limited. They get a first- hand view of the unmet need in the region, and they are able to look at how their own beliefs and values impact their allocation decisions. This project provides an important service to the United Way because our students are able to utilize their social work knowledge when examining each family’s needs, and they are able to apply professional expertise to the project.

Field Instructor Certification Program (Fall 2007 and ongoing)

Worked collaboratively with field directors at Saint Louis University and Washington University to expand orientation and training for new field instructors. Developed a 6 session, eighteen-hour training that is now required for all new field instructors. Topics include orientation, successful beginnings, values and ethics, cultural competency, the field instructor as teacher, mentor and supervisor, and racial equity.

Administrative Responsibilities

Direct the school's field education program and directly oversee the MSW field education program. Responsibilities include the development and implementation of field placement policies; identification, approval and monitoring of over 400 field placement sites and 1200 supervisors; student advising around field placement; facilitation of practicum planning workshops; review and approval of student learning agreements; consultation to students, agency field instructors, and faculty advisors on field placement issues; facilitation of the foundation field seminar; and serve as field faculty liaison to foundation MSW students.

Serve as UMSL Project Director for the Social Work Collaborative Field Education Project, a collaborative partnership among four local Schools of Social Work. Activities include field instructor orientation and training, continuing education events for field instructors, a joint field site data base and common approval forms, and coordination of other project initiatives.

Organized and facilitate annual new MSW student orientation (2001-2013).

Supervised the administrative assistant for the MSW program (prior to 2017) and the assistant director of field education.

Assist as needed with other School administrative activities such writing sections of the CSWE accreditation self study and preparing for the site visit, writing sections of the School of Social Work's five-year review by the university, and developing a proposal for assistance with management of student information.
