Traffic Rules Under State Law

Motorists using roads on the UMSL campus soon will drive under the hand of the state, according to UMSL police Chief William Karakas.

The grant represents two-thirds of the purchase price of the instrument and will enable the University to make some progress toward its long-range plan.

This redirection of resources will provide more than half the $17.9 million needed to improve facilities and staff and salary needs. However, the budget calls for a 6.2 million increase over the current fiscal year, up 4.7 percent; and $81.1 million for wages and salaries, up 2.8 percent. These reductions will be necessary in upcoming fiscal years if fiscal constraints are to be maintained.

The need for more facilities for students continued this year as the number of students increased by about 1.5 percent. The budget also includes $400,000 for fiscal year 1986 for equipment acquisitions, up 4.7 percent; and $81.1 million for wages and salaries, up 2.8 percent.

The UM-Smolka Center for Social Research and Public Policy (UM-Smolka) was established in 1973 to provide a forum for public and private organizations and agencies to exchange ideas and information on issues of mutual concern. The Center is supported by a combination of public and private funding, and is directed by a board of trustees composed of representatives from various disciplines and sectors of society.

New Editors Named

After almost a year of planning and negotiation, Dennis Jano, director of the University Program Board, announced last week that Dennis Kucinski, professor of economics and public policy and director of the Center for Developmental Education, and Janet Roseman, professor of business administration, have been appointed to the newly created positions of coordinator of economic and public policy and director of the Center for Developmental Education, respectively. The appointments will take effect on July 1.

The two new editors will have the responsibility of overseeing the Center for Developmental Education and the Center for Economic and Public Policy, which will become the Newsbriefs Office.

Knight To Study UMSL

University President C. Peter Magrath has announced that John P. G. Kincaid, professor of economics and public policy, will join the faculty at UMSL and be appointed director of the Center for Developmental Education, which oversees the Newsbriefs Office. The appointment is effective immediately.

Kincaid comes to UMSL from the University of Texas at Austin, where he has been a professor of economics and public policy since 1981. His research interests include economic development, urban affairs, and education.

In his new role at UMSL, Kincaid will work closely with Magrath and the other editors to develop and implement new strategies for reaching out to the UMSL community and beyond.

Magrath said he believes that Kincaid's extensive experience in economic development and public policy will be invaluable in helping the Newsbriefs Office expand its reach and impact.

UMSLS Goes South

K. Peter Bostrom, director of research and associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, has been designated assistant executive director for the University of Missouri-St. Louis, effective immediately.

The announcement comes as UMSL continues to explore opportunities for growing its student base and expanding its programs in the St. Louis metropolitan area.

"We're very excited about this opportunity to work with the University of Missouri-St. Louis," Bostrom said. "I believe we can bring a unique perspective and expertise to this role, and I'm committed to helping the University achieve its goals in the St. Louis area."
South Africa Issue High Priority for Student Association

SA Has Uphill Battle
To Win Divestiture

Florence J. Tipton

September 29, 1985

Much has been written lately about the battle in South Africa to win rights as citizens and to be freed from apartheid in that country. For students at UMSL, the Student Association has had an uphill battle to win funds in South Africa.

Dr. Greg Barnes, Student Association president, said, "Everything is discussed toward a financial point of view." A special task force of 15 members appointed by UMSL President C. Peter Meinert was set up to help Barnes make decisions about the Student Association divestiture movement. Barnes said that he was "frustrated" and "upset" about the battle of blacks in South Africa.

Depending on the battle situation, the Student Association has had two or three committees. The student funds race was a situation where a Columbia student who did not make reservations.

Two other committees were formed by the chairman of the task force. Barnes said that people who were appointed to these committees did not have enough interest in the movement. At the same time, the Student Association has tried to exercise some of their campus vehicles taken away.

Barnes also said that photographs have been taken at every protest meeting. As a result, some student members were black.

Traffic Laws Can Do Nothing But Help

The students of this university deserve the same protection on campus as they would receive off campus, and that is what they will receive next month when UMSL traffic regulations become state law.

No longer will speeders, careless or drunken driving or any other moving violation go almost unpunished. No longer will a violation such as speeding cost you only the amount printed on the ticket - it will cost you points on your driving record or an already described by state law. In our estimation, traffic regulations should serve a far broader function than they have in the past.

And when vehicle traffic and pedestrian traffic mix, there needs to be a system, such as we now have under the law. Safety should be the top priority. Traffic regulations can each create an experience of danger directly deserve a try.

Traffic violations need to be taken seriously and the governmental officials consistently apply the regulation to all drivers equally. That, in turn, is a serious but important function of state law and the forbidding traffic regulations as set by the UMSL Board of Curators will be necessary.

Dear Editor:

While the idea of ending apartheid in South Africa is not a new one, we should look at a look at what we are feeling by staring at the apartheid movement. Mandela and his band of thugs and terrorists in the African National Congress have a good track record of violent means of winning their way to power. I am against this form of government and I applaud the students of South Africa who continue to fight for their freedom. Student Vote for MoPirG Should Stand

UM President C. Peter Magrath stood more than the possibility of establishing a UMSL student chapter of the Missouri Public Interest Research Group this fall by not supporting a proposed waivable fee for the group - the student government.

Apparantly, last year’s student elections were for naught. After backers of the MoPIRG group petitioned formally to get the student government’s group on the ballot with the waivable fee, a statement that would have enabled students to sign the waiver and deduct that fee from their Statement of Fees - the group was a clear winner.

Or the UMSL student voter turnout, 314, voted in favor of the waivable fee.

We feel the student government and voters become involved in the summer when Magrath decided that UMSL students did not warrant "the imposition of a fee that clearly places the burden on the student to avoid paying the fee," he said.

And it is the UMSL campus is nothing new that the number of students who did get involved in the election - the students who were voted. They are the losers. In my estimation, Kaegi, in essence, erased the votes of the small minority of UMSL student community which did vote. Total student involvement alone remains.

Celebrate a Grand Opening for any store is a particularly special occasion, but not every such celebration can be as grand as the Gift-Mart Grand Opening. The event took place in the late morning hours, and the parking lot adjacent to Gift-Mart was already bustling with a crowd of eager customers.

Gift-Mart Celebrates Grand Opening With Festival

Ron Schmidt, Gift-Mart's manager, welcomed the crowd and introduced the featured artist and entertainment for the day. The artist, a local soft painter, showcased her work in the parking lot. The crowd was captivated by her vibrant paintings, and a group of children was seen sketching the artist's work.

The festival also featured a variety of food vendors, including hot dogs, tacos, and cookies. The aroma of the food wafted through the air, inviting passersby to taste the delicious offerings.

Out Of Africa

or Out Of This World?

Director: Sidney Lumet

Starring: Robert Redford, Meryl Streep

Rated: R

Director Lumet has made a film that is both a study of relationships and a historical piece. Out Of Africa is a story of two people who are drawn to each other, despite the cultural and geographical differences that separate them. The film is set in the 1930s, and the characters are played by Robert Redford and Meryl Streep. Their relationship is complicated by the fact that they are from different worlds, and the film explores the challenges of bridging these gaps.

The film's visual style is also impressive. The settings are beautifully shot, with attention to detail that makes the viewer feel as if they are there. The locations include Ethiopia, Kenya, and the United States, and each one is depicted with great care.

Overall, Out Of Africa is a well-made film that explores important themes and is visually stunning. It is recommended for audiences who enjoy historical dramas and well-acted films.

Cheerleaders Practice, Share Ideas

[Editor's note: This article was submitted by Carol J. White, Gift-Mart cheerleader coach.]

What do the Universities of Miami, Auburn, Tennessee, Florida State, Florida and South Carolina have in common? They all have cheerleaders. But the University of Miami has a unique cheerleader program that is unlike any other.

At first glance, each carries a "D"-shaped flag which is part of a "D"-shaped logo (UM) with the word "cheer" across it. The cheerleaders are the heart and soul of the University of Miami football program and are an integral part of the University's culture.

But UM does have a common cheerleader team: The "Cheer" team. This team is made up of male and female cheerleaders from across the country, including from universities like Oklahoma, Arkansas and Memphis State, who have come together to compete against each other.

The "Cheer" team is known for its high-energy performances and has captured numerous national championships over the years. The team is led by a female coach who has been with the program for many years.

The "Cheer" team practices several times a week, with a focus on improving their skills and preparing for upcoming competitions. They perform at football games, basketball games, and other events throughout the year.

The "Cheer" team is not just about cheerleading; it is about camaraderie, teamwork, and a shared love for the sport.

The "Cheer" team is an integral part of the University of Miami community and is a symbol of the school's commitment to excellence in athletics and academics.

The "Cheer" team is made up of students who share a common goal: to be the best cheerleaders in the country. They are dedicated to their craft and are driven by a passion for the sport.

The "Cheer" team is a true example of what it means to be a University of Miami cheerleader.

Rhodes Scholarship

Despite the language of the official announcement a candidate need not be superhuman to qualify. The Rhodes Scholarship is open to any undergraduate student who has completed at least three years of college and has maintained a high academic standing. No specific major is required, and the scholarship is not limited to any particular field or profession.

The Selection Committee looks for high scholarship (probability at least a 3.7 GPA) in the preceding two years. The student must also be an active member of at least one extracurricular interest (which in some cases might be the student's employment), and a minimum of two letters of recommendation are usually available. A student must be physically fit and enjoy exercise.

The program will include a one-week orientation in Oxford during the fall term, followed by a year of study in Oxford. The Rhodes Scholarship is awarded annually, and the recipient becomes a member of the Rhodes Society, an international body that promotes the ideals of the Rhodes Scholarship.

Rivermen Hope Repeats Itself In 1985

Dallas Looking For Real Showstopper

Jim Goedden returns with.

If the world is indeed a stage, then the UMSL soccer team is ready to perform another enthralling presentation of last season — hopefully with better results this year.

Last year the UMSL Rivermen joined the University of Southern Pacific and the National Collegiate Athletic Association's Division II semifinals. This season many of those same players return for another shot at an NCAA championship.

Although some people are competing, all the teams in the 13-divisioned national championship UMSL team, Coach Jim Dallas is not ready to make that statement.

"It is too early for that comparision. I think we have the players to be a contender in the region," Dallas said.

There will be some holes in the team when it comes to replacements for back John Reisinger, forward Joe Brashear and midfielder Joe Brechner.

"I think this year's team will be hard to replace will be Brashear," Dallas said. "He was really coming on at the end last season when his knee gave him some trouble."

"Kortkamp and Osvald will be hard to replace in the region. But Osvald could be as good as," Dallas said. "But while we're concerned about Kortkamp, the NCAA rules state that he cannot play this season."

"It could really control out of our hands," Dallas said.

Despite Dallas' hesitation to call on a few returning players, the statistics point out that this should be one of the strongest teams in the Division IIuest season.

On the other hand, the UMSL team is ready to address the 13-divisioned national championship UMSL team

Dallas was selected in the first round of the 1985 Western Regional. The expectations are high for the Rivermen this year.

"I think a lot of teams want to take the Rivermen out," Dallas said.

The Riverwomen record book shows that a couple of negative records were broken last season. The greatest margin of defeat came in a 30-0 loss to Wisconsin-Madison. But the record book also shows that the longest home winning streak ended at 27 games. The streak continued until the twenty-sixth game when they lost 3-2 to Michigan State. But the streak was quickly recovered and UMSL finished the season with ten victories and only two losses.

HELP WANTED

Aug. 29, 1985

With the Rivermen limping toward a 3-9 record it was McFetridge who arrived in the nick of time to propel the team to its first postseason tourney since 1981. Nick of time to propel the team to its first postseason tourney since 1981. McFetridge earned All-American honors in just his second year in a Rivermen uniform.

A season before, McFetridge was, for all intents and purposes, an afterthought in a team that had to deal with the absence of sophomore Nick Stahl due to a redshirt.

LeGrand said, "It really wasn't until Nick had to sit out that season and watch as a new star would steal the spotlight. McFetridge then had to take full use of McFetridge's absence to cement a place in UMSL soccer history. It was a reality."

``Superstar'' Hantak will be relied on to generate most of the UMSL offense again, but will need help from his other forwards in order for the Rivermen to match last year's success. To expect Hantak to carry the same workload as he did in his All-American election last year may be expecting too much. Another former player who was a "superstar" his freshman year, will be counting on to contribute more this season than in the previous year. Hoerner is being used at the wing right now and it is hoped that he can add to his five assists this year.

Meramec transfer Steve Wiendel is juggling between both offense and defense. Wiendel is looking for a starting berth on the team with sophomore Butch Bellers for the final preseason game on the road. Wiendel is still moving around a lot of people so anything can happen," said Dallas. "It is being hoped that he will grab hold of the 2-1, 2-0, 1-0 UWM and build upon these results."
